DESIGNATED AVIATION MEDICAL EXAMINER TRAINING PROGRAM

Saturday 16 – Sunday 24 June, 2018
Perth, WA

This intensive 9-days course will cover the competencies set out by the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) for training of Designated Medical Examiners. It is a highly interactive course, with only 15 delegates, and employs adult learning principles. It is assessed, with a MCQ and a brief oral/practical test. It includes practical exposure to aviation workplaces (flight simulators and air traffic control facilities) as well as the opportunity to undergo hypoxia familiarisation.

The teaching will be led, and largely delivered, by Dr David Powell, currently Group Medical Officer with Virgin Australia and President of the Airlines Medical Directors Association. David has been appointed as Medical Advisor to IATA from late May. David is a specialist in aviation and occupational medicine, has for many years been teaching on the University of Otago's aviation medicine programme, and was Chief Medical Officer at Air New Zealand for 12 years. He holds commercial pilots licences on aeroplanes and helicopters, and chairs the education committee of the Australasian College of Aerospace Medicine.

In delivering the training David will be assisted by suitable local clinical specialists and other aviation medical specialists. The regulatory part of the programme will be delivered by Dr Michael Drane, Principal Medical Officer of CASA. The programme is full-time for nine days and will require your full attention. A reference textbook and required teaching materials will be required. The training is being supported by CASA as it is specifically aimed at achieving certification as Designated Aviation Medical Examiners (DAME).

Doctors interested in starting to work in this fascinating field of medicine should apply. In case of oversubscription, priority will be given to those intending to work as a DAME in areas where there is a shortage.
